

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Moody Press

27 August 2010

Chicago, IL:

Moody Publishers is pleased to announce that all maps and photographs of the award-winning Atlas—The New Moody Atlas of the Bible, by Barry J. Beitzel—are now available in digital form, at no cost, to all current and future purchasers of the Atlas. Starting today, each copy of the Atlas shipped from the Moody Publishers warehouse will contain a code, redeemable for a software download on the Internet. This software allows the maps and pictures to be displayed on screen for personal, classroom, congregational, or other uses. Previous purchasers of the Atlas may contact MP customer service at mpcustomerservice@moody.edu or 1-800-678-8812 to receive their code and instructions. Copies of the Atlas are also available through standard trade outlets, such as Amazon (amazon.com), Borders (Borders.com), Barnes & Noble (bn.com), and Books-A-Million (booksamillion.com), etc.

The New Moody Atlas of the Bible* won the ECPA 2010 Christian Books Award, Medallion of Excellence, in the Bible Study and Reference category. Additionally, the Atlas was named 2010 “Winner” in the Book/Atlas category at the 37th Annual Map Design Competition sponsored by the Cartography and Geographic Information Society (CaGIS), held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Association of American Geographers. Open to all map-makers in the United States and Canada for maps completed or published during 2009, the purpose of the CaGIS is “to promote interest in map design and to recognize significant design advances in cartography. The focus of this competition is design; therefore, judging is based on cartographic design criteria, such as creativity, text, balance, unity, clarity, use of color, and subject matter.” Winners in each category will be displayed at a number of national and international professional venues and will then become part of the permanent collection of the U.S. Library of Congress.
